Rose Class

This week, Rose Class explored how Stone Age people created cave paintings without modern day paints or paintbrushes. On Wednesday, we headed into our Forest School area to make our own charcoal by placing carefully prepared sticks on the fire. The children also experimented with creating natural paints by mixing mud, crushing bricks and exploring other natural materials to discover the different colours they could produce.

The children were challenged to think creatively about what might make a good paintbrush. They came up with some fantastic ideas, experimenting with natural materials such as sticks, feathers and leaves to make their own brushes!

On Thursday, during our Parent Open Afternoon, the children put their creations to the test and produced their very own Stone Age inspired cave paintings using the materials they had made.

A big thank you to all the adults who came along and joined us for the afternoon!
